

MEDIATION STRATEGIES

JOAN B. KESSLER, JD, PHD

You are receiving this communication as a result of your interest in resolving disputes through mediation.

Lack of accurate analysis of feedback may cause problems in communication in a mediator.

1. Especially true with interactants of different cultural orientations.
2. Sending verbal/nonverbal messages yields receiver feedback.
3. Subsequent messages may be influenced by receiver's feedback, or sender's perception of this feedback.

For instance, in an exchange between a mediator and litigant and/or attorney, the mediator must carefully assess the litigant's and/or attorney's reactions to what is said in order to decide how and what to say to the individual. Failure to understand how this litigant and/or attorney is reacting may cause the person to feel hostile or uncomfortable with the mediation.

Over 30 years ago I received a Ph.D. from the University of Michigan in Communications. For the 15 years before I went to law school in 1983 I taught interpersonal relations, group interaction, conflict resolution and intercultural communication courses. Many of the communication issues and solutions I taught, I have applied over the years in my mediation practice.

THINK ABOUT THIS PRIOR TO YOUR NEXT MEDIATION
